

Butchers Bluff

William Instone

2018

rev.instone@yahoo.com

EXT. HOUSE - DAY

Jake and Tina stand outside next to the camper.

Derick exits the house carrying a camera bag.

DERICK

You guys sure you don't want to come with us? We're going to talk with the Farmer that found the Boy, then the Sheriff, We'll most likely be gone all day.

POV: HOGMAN

Watching from behind the trees, he listens to the Groups conversation from a far.

TINA

No thanks. After that Creepy gas station, I've had enough that Red Neck town.

JAKE

Yeah man, somebody's got to stay here and babysit the pleasure twins. Leave them alone they might burn the house down.

Rodger exits the camper.

RODGER

Yes, please Jake, don't let anything happen to the house. My Dad will beat my ass if anything gets broken.

JAKE

Don't worry man. I got this. Go make your movie magic.

Rodger nods with a smile and shuts the RV's door.

The RV drives away from the house.

Jake notices movement in the trees along the side of the house, He steps forward to try and get a better look. Tina doesn't see anything.

TINA

What are you looking at?

Jake lingers a moment before answering.

JAKE

It's nothing. Must of been a cat or something.

Jake smiles and puts his arm around Tina.

JAKE

So now that their gone, what are we gonna do to pass the time.

TINA

I can think of a few ideas.

Tina kiss Jake softly on his neck. She pulls back takes a hold of the collar of his shirts and leads him away.